Student Teacher: We begin week two of Mr. Harshman’s student teaching experience today. Most of you have returned the work sample and video tape permission slip, but a few have not. If it is attached to this newsletter, you have not returned it. Would you do that as soon as possible, please! Thank you!

Just the Facts

What We’re Studying

- Spelling Tests are always on Wednesdays
- Beginning Expository Writing – Due January 31 – Writing Celebration Day also – 11:30-12:30. RSVP in box below
- Social Studies -- Unit 5: The New Nation
- Unit B Science – Final Projects due March 2
- Science Fair Project – final projects due Jan. 23-25
- Math -- Multiplication and Division (some of this will be new to you – let me know if you have questions!)

Science Fair

I hope things are going well with the Science Fair Projects. We will continue typing final reports and making graphs/charts in class this week. The kids will be doing this mostly on their own. If you have not yet purchased a science fair board, I still have them available for $4.75. Just send in the money and I’ll send home a board. Remember the projects are due to school between Jan. 23 and 25. I am also looking to borrow foldable tables for the week of Science Fair. I would need them starting Jan 23. If you have one to lend me, I would greatly appreciate it. Let me know in the comments below!
